Ohio Tracks Offers Help for Horses at Risk

Cincinnati's River Downs Race Track has established a "surrender stall" program for horse owners who can no longer care for their animals. The program was established in response to the removal of six allegedly malnourished horses from a farm operated by former Thoroughbred horse trainer Chad Moore, said River Downs Publicity Director John Engelhardt.

Inmates, Retired Racehorses Earn Winning Roles in 'Homestretch' Documentary

During the last year, more and more news stories have featured the fate of retired racehorses. Federal Legislation has been passed to prevent slaughter of these old athletes in the U.S. Jim Tremper runs the Thoroughbred Retirement Foundation's (TRF) horse farm at Watkill where prisoners develop compassion and sensitivity by caring for these horses. The success of this program captured the attention of filmmaker Sheri Bylander who directed and produced a documentary called "Homestretch."

Off the Track Thoroughbred dubbed 'World's Smartest Horse'

For 37 years Karen Murdock has dedicated her life to horses, doing everything from dressage and barrel racing to jumping and trail riding. But in all her experiences she has never encountered a horse quite like Lukas. Starting out as a downtrodden "racetrack reject," Lukas is now known to many as one of the most intelligent animals on the planet because of Murdock's soft-spoken training techniques.
